Upcote. 1614.

A Prognostication for the yeare of our Lord GOD. 1614.

Made and written by Agustine Upcote Gent. practitioner in Phisicke.

Imprinted at London for the Companie of Stationers.

A Deſcription of the foure Quarters of the yeere.

Of Winter, the Sunne in Capricorne, Aquarius, and Piſces.

WInter (according to our vſuall Engliſh Computation) beginneth the 11. day of December in the yeere before going, at the firſt entring of the Sunne into the firſt Degree of the ſigne Capricorne, the day being then at the ſhorteſt, and the night at the longeſt; and then afterwards, the dayes begin to lengthen more and more, howbeit but lytle perceiued vntill Newyeares day. This ſeaſon is inclynable to cold and moyſture, anſwering to the Complexion of Old men, and agreeable to the Element of Water: for looke how the ſeaſons of the yeere are, ſo are our bodyes affected.

If the Winter then be cold enough, and reaſonably moyſt, it cauſeth generally in healthy bodyes good concoction, whereby their health is the better preſerued: yet in ſuch Winter, notwithſtanding the weake, thinne, and flegmaticke bodyes, and old folke, cannot feele themſelues ſo well as at other ſeaſons, therefore their dyet muſt be thereafter: Firſt, let them goe warme clothed, let them not trauell much abroad, eſpecially in foule weather, their ſleepe muſt be meaſured according to their concoction; for if they digeſt their Meate well in the night time, then leſſe ſleepe will ſerue; if not, then let them lie a bed the longer to procure them ſelues the more ſleepe, for, Somnus concoquit, nothing helpeth better digeſtion both of Stomacke and Liuer, then ſleepe; yea although it be ſomewhat long. In ſuch bodyes as aforeſayd, they muſt make two or three meales a day, according to their appetite & custome. I haue knowne some Old men to eate in the morning a peece of a Toast dipped in Muscadell in the Winter, and in Claret wine in the Sommer, drinking after it a draught of the same Wine: they may vse also in the morning for their breakfast, a poched Egge, or one soft rosted, or a Toast and Butter, or a messe of hotte Milke, and such like. They must also flye (as much as may be) phlegmaticke Meates, as much vse of Brothes and Pottage, cold Sallads, raw Fruites, Fish boyled, the often eating of Boyled meates, especially at night, and late supping, and drinking of too small Drinkes, but rather to vse a cuppe of Wine or two at meales doth much good, and helpeth well digestion: also, anoyde al Meates of hard concoction, very salt meates, raw Onyons raw Garlicke, raw Leekes, hard Cheese, Bread not well baked heauy and vnleauined, cold Milke. raw Creame, great Labour, and long Watching; all these (I say) are not good for those bodyes aforesaid, I meane the cold Flegmaticke, being weake and old: But as for healthfull bodyes and Strong, no Dyet, or Medicinall precept is to be giuen; for our Sauiour sayth, Bene valentibus non est opus medico, Those that are in health need no Physition.

The Diseases that most commonly are wont to reigne this Quarter, are Palsies, Goutes, Cathars, Apostumes of the Lungs, Pluriſies, Poles, Hoarsenes, Coughes, payne in either of the Sides and Hippes, Headach, paine in the Eyes, Teeth, Eares, & Necke, Swimming in the Head, Apoplexies, Quotidian Agues, & such like.

Of the Spring, the Sunne being in Aries, Taurus, and Gemini.

THis Spring beginneth the xi. day of March, the Sunne then entring into the Equinoctiall signe Aries, and rising at fiue a clocke in the morning, and setting at fiue in the euening: the day and night being then equall in length in all places of the world.

This season is hot and moyst, resembling the Sanguine complexion, and element of Ayre, according to Hipp. but by Galen, it be rather temperate, which is in a manner all one: for heate and moysture moderately ioyned, is no other thing, but a good temperature: for according to Aristotle, In calido et humido temperate mixtis (Silicet constituit vita,) frigidum autem et siccum sunt principia mortis.

In this season, all lyuing thinges that are sensible doe spring, shoote out, grow, and come forward: As also in mans body the Blood beginneth to flow, and as it were a resty to renew it selfe through all partes of the body, the good blood to the bodies health, but the euill, to breed corruption and diseases: Wherefore now, the time is meete and conuenient for to vse Preseruations, Purgations, and Blood letting, with other remedies to keepe and reduce the body in health. Therefore they that loue their health, let them now seeke Counsell at the learned Phisitions handes, if they be troubled with any Disease. As for example: If any man or woman doe abounde in Blood that doe oppresse the powers of their body, and as it were dulling the senses, or feeling a wearinesse or payne in their Limbes (called in latine Lassitudo spontanea) or Headach, or a Flure of blood at the Nose, or downewardes by the Hemrhoydes or feeleth any great Itch, Scabbes, or leprosie Biles, Vlcerations or Goutes, it is good for them, vnlesse they be very old, or young, to be let blood more or lesse, according as their strength and age can endure. They may also be Purged, if need be.

Also, if any mans body be troubled inwardly with any corrupt or superfluous Humors, as superabundance of Fleagme, corrupt Fleagme, Choler, Melancholy or Watrish humors; let them vse such Purgations as by the aduice of the honest learned Phisition shall be thought meete for each kind of Humor to be expelled; but be carefull to vse the aduice of Hipp. Corpora si quis purgare vult, oportet fluida reddere, and Concocti medicari et mouere. &c. But Glisters and gentle Purgations may be giuen at all times without Preparatiues or Digestiues, as some call them.

The vsing of Purgations at this time, will not onely cleanse the Body from corrupt Humors gathered in the Winter before, but also (with good diet) will preuent many Diseases in the next Sommer, which were like to follow.

Sometimes at this Season (for certaine Diseases) it will be good to vse Bathing, or to Sweate in the Bedde or Hot-house, or to goe to the naturall Baths in Aprill, May, or September: but let that be done by the aduice of the learned and iudicious Phisition, and not to run to the common Baths hand ouer head for euery trifling Disease, as very inadiuisedly many doe.

The Meates of best nourishment, are fittest for this season: for such Meates, such Blood: and such Blood, such state of Body: If there be generation of good Blood, the body must needes be the more healthfull, vnlesse the Disease proceed of some outward cause; as of the corruption of the Ayre in the time of Pestilence & Plague, or some other vehement qualitie of the same.

Of the Sommer, the Sunne being in Cancer, Leo, and Virgo.

THe Sommer beginneth this yeare 1614. the xii. day of June, at what time the Sunne entreth into Cancer, causing then the longest day, and shortest night in the yeare; for now the Sunne ryseth neere three of the clocke, and setteth about eight.

This Season is ordinarily hot and dry, compared to the Element of Fire, and complexion of Choller. And Mars in this Quarter being strongly placed, will not onely cause great Heate, with Thunder, Lightning, and great Showers, at certaine times, but also will stirre the euill disposed people and chollericke to Contention, Quarreling, Warre, and Conspiracies. Also this Reuolution doth shew great Care, trouble of Minde, and sorrow of some great Rich men chiefly happning to them by reason of great cold. Also, losse and hinderance of diuers Husband-men in their Beasties and Cattle: and generally it sheweth among most men some losse or other in their Goods; but chiefly to the Richer sort. Also little good Seruice, but rather Stubbernesse, Disobedience, and False dealing, will be shewed and vsed of many Seruantes towardes their Maisters. It sheweth also Robbing, Spoyling, and violent Oppression, and taking away of mens Goods wrongfully, with great great trouble that shall happen to them otherwise.

Corne, Wine, Butter, and Cheese, will be as plenty as at other times they haue been: But that the hardnesse of mens hearts shall strive what they can to cause a Dearth.

In this Season it is not good to eate much Meate, and that must be rather boyled then roasted: But to drinke somewhat more franckly then at other seasons it shall not be much amisse, if it be not after the drunkards order, who will powre it in till witte and reason be cleane lost: Therefore let little Wine be now vsed, except it be of old folke, and weake persons. Raw Lettice, Purslane, young Spinnage, and Cowcombers, are good in Sallades for lusty young cholericke boyes: And as it is in Schola Salerni,

Ex magna Cœna, stomacho fit maxima Pœna:
Vt sis vale leuis, sit tibi cœna breuis.

That thou mayst haue a quiet rest,
And that thy Stomacke feele no paine:
Prouide thy Supper betimes be drest
With little Meate, to thy great gaine.

Hot Wines, Spices, Aquæ vitæ, Onions, Garlike, hot Herbes, (vnlesse it be whole Parsly, Time, Rosemarie, and Marigold, in Brothes) Radish rootes, much Exercise, and violent Mouing of the body, long Standing or going in the Sunne, too close keeping in a narrow roome, or much Fire in the Chamber, and too hotte Couerings ouer the Bedde: all these things, are very hurtfull in this season. And in any wise be ware of taking cold after a great heate, or sweate, or to drinke sodainely cold drinke after great labour and exercise of the body. Beware alls of very new Bread, and new Drinkes: for they are nought at all times: But aboue all, beware of violent Passion, Chasing, Fretting, and Anger; for that increaseth Choler, the which doth increase fast enough of it selfe this season of the yeare.

The Diseases of this Season are vsually burning Agues, Cotidians, Tertians, Laskes, Vomitinges, trouble and inflamation of the Eyes, paine in the Eares, Blisters, Byles, Sores of the Mouth, and such like.

Of Autumne, or Fall of the Leafe: the Sunne in Libra, Scorpio, and Sagittarie.

THe Haruest quarter is called Autumne, and doth begin the xiii. day of September, for that the Sunne entreth into the signe Libra, making the second Equinoctiall, the day and night of equall length, accompting the day from vi. in the morning, vntill vi. in the euening: that is, from the rysing of the Sunne, to the setting of the same.

This Season by nature, should be for the most part, cold and dry in which doth oftentimes reigne diuers of the Sommer Sicknesse, besides Quartaines wild and inconstant Agues Oppilations of the Spleene, Dropsies, Consumptions, and Vlcerations of the Lunges, Stranguries, Bloody flixes and other Laskes, Sciatica, Squinancies, Shortnes of Breath, Fretting in the small Guttes called Illica passio, the Epilepsia, Madnesse proceeding of burt Choler. &c.

Wherefore let those bodyes that do abound with euill Humors, in the beginning of this season, vse Blood-letting or Purgation, or both, as the honest learned Phisition shall aduise. In this season also take heed of cold, and vse litle or none at all of Melancholicke meates, as Wildfoule, Beefe, Venison, Hare, Goates flesh, hard Cheese, Cabbage and Coleworts, (yet the moderate vse of Cabbage is tollerable with a peece of fatte Beefe.) Drinke no Redde wine nor Aligant: eate no Beanes nor Peason.

As concerning this Season, I suppose it will proone very moyst and cloudy, subiect to no store of great Windes, but onely some two or three outragious stormes.

A Precaution and Forewarning, made for euery Moneth of this yeare of our Lord God 1614. declaring the dayes and nightes that are dangerous to fall ſicke in: where-*by euery man may take heede to him*ſelfe, and ſo prouide in time, for ſpeedy remedie.
